

To have the peace the Savior speaks of (see John 14:27), we must devote our time to the things that matter most, and the things of God matter most. As we engage with God in sincere prayer, read and study each day from the scriptures, ponder on what we have read and felt, and then apply and live the lessons learned, we draw nearer to Him. God's promise is that as we seek diligently from the best books, "[He] shall give unto [us] knowledge by his Holy Spirit" (D&C 12:26; see also D&C 109:14-15).

~ Ian S. Ardern
Of the Seventy

To have the peace the Savior speaks of (see John 14:27), we must devote our time to the things that matter most, and the things of God matter most. As we engage with God in sincere prayer, read and study each day from the scriptures, ponder on what we have read and felt, and then apply and live the lessons learned, we draw nearer to Him. God's promise is that as we seek diligently from the best books, "[He] shall give unto [us] knowledge by his Holy Spirit" (D&C 12:26; see also D&C 109:14-15).

~ Ian S. Ardern
Of the Seventy

To have the peace the Savior speaks of (see John 14:27), we must devote our time to the things that matter most, and the things of God matter most. As we engage with God in sincere prayer, read and study each day from the scriptures, ponder on what we have read and felt, and then apply and live the lessons learned, we draw nearer to Him. God's promise is that as we seek diligently from the best books, "[He] shall give unto [us] knowledge by his Holy Spirit" (D&C 12:26; see also D&C 109:14-15).

~ Ian S. Ardern
Of the Seventy

To have the peace the Savior speaks of (see John 14:27), we must devote our time to the things that matter most, and the things of God matter most. As we engage with God in sincere prayer, read and study each day from the scriptures, ponder on what we have read and felt, and then apply and live the lessons learned, we draw nearer to Him. God's promise is that as we seek diligently from the best books, "[He] shall give unto [us] knowledge by his Holy Spirit" (D&C 12:26; see also D&C 109:14-15).

~ Ian S. Ardern
Of the Seventy